The challenges and opportunities of an ageing population

This session begins with a presentation by our keynote speaker on the world's changing demography and the impact this could have on population distribution and the global economy, coupled with a comparison of the outlook for the UK with the rest of Europe and other jurisdictions. Given the predicted ageing population in the UK, three sector specialists will give their thoughts on how the changes will affect the future use and development of residential, retail/town centre and office floor space.

3 The implications of political uncertainty for UK real estate

Our keynote speaker will discuss the global political shift away from globalisation and towards protectionism. This will be followed by a more detailed examination of the political trends within Europe and how these are likely to impact the Brexit negotiations and the future degree of alignment between the UK and the rest of Europe. Against this backdrop, our second speaker will consider the risks and opportunities for the UK real estate market.

4 Social impact investing – where does real estate fit in?

Social impact is becoming a mainstream factor in many investors' decision-making processes. The speakers in this session will consider the drivers of social impact investing (SII), what can be learnt from other investment sectors and jurisdictions, how SII is relevant to the commercial real estate market and the development of measurement methodologies.
